Øfély is a Swiss artist shaped by time in London and Barcelona, playing with the limits of pop music. Working with a compact, nomadic setup, she's built a sound where ukulele stands in for bass or electric guitar, layered with MIDI synths.

Her love of freedom shows in her lyrics and in her process: she does everything herself, in the studio and on stage. That rebellious streak is balanced by a sensitivity that comes through in her voice, offering space to breathe in a world that never slows down.
